PARDONED.

Man Who Killed a Night Rider Receives a Full Pardon.

THE LAWS MUST BE UPHELD.

In Shelby county in June, Newton Hazlett, a supposed night rider, was shot and killed by Walter Duncan, who, accompanied by Riley Harrod, was guarding his tobacco barn from a threatened raid by night riders. Duncan confessed that he killed Hazlett and claimed self defense. He and Harrod were indicted and the case had not been disposed of.

In fulfillment of his promise to pardon without trial any man who may kill another in defense of his life or property, if endangered by night riders, Governor Willson on Wednesday granted pardons to Duncan and Harrod.

After dealing at length with the conditions prevalent in Kentucky, and especially in Shelby, and reciting the occurrences of that night, Governor Willson in his pardon says:

NO ROOM FOR DOUBT IN CASE.

"Of course, the Governor should not interfere except when he actually knows that the defendant was acting in self-defense and in the protection of his home and in the way in which he had been asked by the Governor to act. But in this case there is no room at all for doubt that Mr. Duncan has acted nobly, bravely and faithfully as any man ever did on earth; that he took his life in his hands to uphold the law, defend his property and repel the attack to be made upon it by the band of which Hazlett was undoubtedly an advance member, who had gone ahead to cut wires and reconnoiter, and if Duncan is not pardoned, and if Duncan was subjected to the expense of employing lawyers and the anxiety of going through trial, his attempt to do his duty bravely results in punishment, instead of reward, and the Governor feels it his duty in every such case to inquire with the greatest care, first to be sure that the defendant was acting in self-defense against attack, but when this is found to be true, the Governor intends in every such case to relieve the defendant of the need of employing counsel or of the hardship of undergoing trial.

DUNCAN AND HARROD BRAVE MEN

"There is no doubt whatever that both Duncan and Harrod were true and brave men, their duty and I do not know any more imperative call upon me for the exercise of the power given me to pardon men than that which is presented by this case, and in recognition of the useful, honorable and brave part which they have had in upholding individual liberty and in repressing violence and crime, I grant to each of them a full and free pardon and direct that no further prosecution against either of them on these charges shall be had.

"AUGUSTUS E. WILLSON, Governor."

POLITICAL CHANGES

Follow Financial Panics--If Like Conditions Prevail Bryan Will Be Elected.

Some knowledge of the future may be obtained by observing the panic of the past.

It is a fact that every financial crisis in the country for nearly 75 years has been followed by the defeat of the party in power at the next election.

The panic in 1837 was during VanBuren's administration and in 1840 VanBuren was defeated for re-election by William Henry Harrison.

During President Polk's administration in 1848 there was a small panic. Zachary Taylor, the candidate of the opposing political party, was elected.

The panic of 1857 occurred during the presidency of Buchanan, and in 1860 Lincoln, of the opposing political party, was elected.

In 1873, during Grant's second term, there was a panic, and Tilden, the candidate of the opposing political party, was elected, although Hayes was afterwards seated.

In 1884 there was a panic when Arthur was President, and in that year Grover Cleveland beat Blaine, who was of Arthur's political party, and the most popular Republican of his time.

In 1893 there was a panic during Cleveland's second term, and in 1896 McKinley, of the opposing political party, was elected.

The panics of 1837, 1848, 1857, 1873, 1884, 1893 were followed by the defeat of the party in power during the panic and the election to the presidency of the candidate of the opposing political party.

What will be the effect of the panic of 1907? Six times this law has worked. Will the seven times prove the exception to the rule?

LEPER WIFE ALONE.

Gen. Wardwell Breaks Down Under Strain of Caring for Her.

Gen. David K. Wardwell, a veteran of the civil and Mexican wars, who stole his wife from a Los Angeles hospital when the authorities declared her a leper, died Sunday, August 17, in a quarantine cabin at Tombstone, Arizona. His exertions last month in abducting his wife, the effort to flee to Mexico with her, and the nervous strain combined to end the life of the hero, who sought to be a leper that he might remain by his loving wife. He was unconscious most of the time during the last twenty-four hours, and lived over the many exciting scenes of his life and talked of the early war days. He muttered his dread of separation from his wife.

In the adjoining room his leper wife, tied to a bed, screamed and struggled for freedom. She is insane.

Dislodged by Steam.

E. Carson, a negro convict at the Frankfort penitentiary, desiring to escape, crawled into the blast pipe of the shoe shop and remained in the pipe until night. Carson was missing and Warden Mudd decided that the negro had tried to escape in the shoe shop. A guard on watch was rewarded by hearing Carson move in the pipe. The steam was turned on and out he came.

BATTLE SCARRED

Naval Officer Retires to Private Life--Saw Service For 48 Years.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, having reached the age of 62 years, went on the retired list August 18, and many of his friends and admirers gathered at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., where the Admiral is recuperating, to express their appreciation of his services to his country.

This distinguished officer, "Fighting Bob," entered the navy when he was 14 years of age and there he spent 48 years. During the Spanish-American war he commanded the New York in the naval battle at Santiago. Recently he has been in command of the fleet as far as San Francisco on its voyage around the world. From the press report of the celebration at Mohonk we gather the following:

The Admiral strongly asserted that the United States is in duty bound to maintain a large navy. He declared that he has always held that our best guarantee of perpetual peace is to be so strong that other nations will be afraid of us.

NEED FORTY-EIGHT BATTLESHIPS.

"We should have twenty-four battleships in both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans," said the Admiral. Sixteen of these should be in commission in each ocean all of the time, with eight held in reserve."

The Admiral expressed it as his opinion, formed through a long service and study of naval needs, that such a fleet of battleships would not only guarantee peace, but would have inestimable value in promoting American trade interests in all quarters of the globe.

Mr. Simmons, of New York, who eulogized the Admiral, said: "Now, that we have become a world power, and now that our domestic affairs, as well as our responsibilities in the Philippines, at Panama, in Hawaii, in Cuba and Porto Rico, subject us to constant danger from the jealous and ambitious aggressions of great naval establishments in Europe as well as in the Orient, it stands to reason that both prudence and duty now demand that we do precisely what our kinsmen in the British Isles long ago found absolutely necessary to their self preservation."

President Roosevelt in letter, after speaking of the Admiral's career and debt of gratitude due him, said:

It is eminently appropriate that the reception to Admiral Evans should be given in what you well call "a veritable temple of peace," for the United States navy is the best guarantee of peace we have, and all men who believe in the peace of justice throughout the world should do everything that in them lies to maintain and build up this navy.

Sincerely yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

A loving cup was presented by Dr. Draper, of New York, in appreciation of long and distinguished service.

THE ADMIRAL'S REPLY.

"It may not be out of place for me to say that during my forty-eight years of service I have done all in my power to uphold the honor and dignity of my country, and that I have loved the dear old flag as I have nothing else in this world. That I have suffered severely under that flag must be evident to any one who sees me, but I would live my life over again just as I have lived it if I knew the suffering was to be a thousand

HOODOO WAS ACTIVE

HAD NOT FOR A MOMENT LOST SIGHT OF SMITH.

Consequently Young Gentleman's Hopes of a Quiet Day in the House of His Aunt Were by No Means Realized.

Something untoward always happened when Smith's aunt commanded his presence. On the occasion of his last visit he recalled that the cook had appeared in the middle of the evening incoherently drunk and he had risen from the foot of the porch right down which they had together fondly roiled, ruffled and dazed. Then there was the trouble with the water tank when it had burst during dinner and sent a miniature Niagara roaring down the attic stairs. And Smith was by way of being a nervous man and such things got on his nerves.

So that when he opened the usual curt invitation, really a royal command to spend the night weekend in the country with his rich aunt, he made a wary face and began to worry. But he knew that he must go—there was no way out of it—the aunt was rich, and he was the heir apparent.

Sunday was a quiet day with some of the neighbors in to dinner. And even his usually furrowed brow was lightened by the presence of a chap who had just returned from a trip to Korea and was willing to talk about it.

It was about two o'clock the next morning. Smith was dreaming of a perfect drive off the sixth tier when he awoke at his aunt's door. His aunt was without and would hold converse with him.

He had congratulated himself when he went to bed that on this visit nothing unhappy was to happen. But he had stumbled into his perverse blanket robe he wondered what it might be the land in of a pale green hue, and any thing dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always present.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to any one who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covered an area of 50 acres is an immense cauldron of blinding and snorting and sizzling forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of escape appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.

His Little Family.

Families of French-Canadian farmers often run into large numbers, as is demonstrated by the following written order received by the proprietor of Quebec's shoe store: "You know some shoe on my little families like this, and send by Sam Jamison, the carrier: One man, Jean St. Jean (me), 42 years; his wife, Marie St. Jean (she), 41 years; Henri and Leo, 19 years; Honor, 18 years; Céline, 17 years; Narcisse, Octavia and Phyllis, 16 years; Olive, 14 years; Philippe, 13 years; Alexandre, 12 years; Rosina, 11 years; Bruno, 10 years; Pierre, 9 years; Eugène, we love him; Edmond and Elie, 7 years; Adrien, 6 years; Camille, 5 years; Zoel, 4 years; Joseph, 3 years; Moise, 2 years; Marie, 1 year; 10 kids. . . He goes hardfoot. How much?"

Quaint Note Notice.

This note appeared recently in a German paper: "Dashed with grief and recognizing the wisdom of God, who decreed it, the widow and four children of Hans, a Jew, lost to the world, known to their relatives and friends the entry into eternal rest of a beloved husband and father. There will be no mourning at his burial because no one could describe his worth or make our sorrow less. Flowers from those who share our grief should not be sent. He, the custom was dissatisfied to him who has gone. If a desire to show such a mark of respect exists let it find expression in good deeds to the poor whose thanks we shall echo in the firm knowledge that the act would find favor with him whose life was good-natured."

Church Tower His Pulpit.

Sunday last being "Pulpit Sunday," the vicar of Selston, Rev. C. Harrison, hit upon the novel idea of preaching from the church tower. The greater part of the congregation seated themselves on the highway.

The reverend gentleman took as his text "The Builders and the Tower," and, possessing a strong voice, his remarks were heard distinctly by the large crowd of colliers and others gathered together, the weather being all that could be desired.—London Evening Standard.

A Unique Cat.

Horace Elliott has a handsome shag cat which he would not sell for love or money, and which is quite a curiosity. She was never known to catch a rat or mouse or anything else, and Mr. Elliott has recently found out what the trouble is. Years of coaxing, have heard of cross-eyed cats. Well, this one is so much that way that when she attempts to catch anything she jumps in the opposite direction.—Rockland (N. J.) Opinion.

Diffusing the Annoyance.

"You don't suppose we take boarders because we need the money?" exclaimed Farmer Courtisot, loftily.

"I had some such idea," answered the man who had rented the place, "but you had better be careful."

"Not at all. We just get these people in from town to keep the mosquitoes from driving in the attention to our home circle."—Exchange.

FIND WOMAN'S WIT UNCERTAIN.

As When This Wife Failed to Approach Her Husband's Pleasantly.

"Don't always rely upon the ready wit of a woman," said the man who is sometimes pleased to consider himself an oracle. "That ready wit business is sometimes prone to get way off."

"For example, my wife and children had been staying in the country for several weeks and I was regular with my letters, as every loving husband should be. Finally on the day before my wife was to start for home I concluded my letter to her with these words:—

"This will be the last letter I will write to you for a long, long time."

"When I got down to my office the next morning I found a telegram from my wife waiting for me. 'What on earth do you mean?' read the dispatch. Later a registered letter came from her. She had blotted almost every line with tears. What it was all about I could not imagine."

"Then my telephone bell rang, and when I answered I heard my wife's voice speaking over the long distance phone."

"Oh, John," said she, 'Is that really you? I thought you had committed suicide!'"

NEW ZEALAND'S WHITE ISLAND.

Always Enveloped in Clouds of Steam—Its Strange Lares.

White Island, in Australia, derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. The area is about 600 acres, and its height about 850 feet above the sea level.

In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior with its gray, weather-beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Capt. Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and any thing dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always present.

ASCRIBED VISIT TO PRAYER.

Father Evidently Had Faith in Daughter's Supplications.

Among my esteemed neighbors there is a family known for the piety of its members and their implicit confidence in the efficacy of prayer. One of the daughters, Miss Kate B., has almost reached the age when she could be referred to gallantly as an old maid. She is the target for many a good-natured quip pertaining to her alleged hopes and endeavors in the direction of matrimony.

Not long ago a certain society of young men which had interested itself in the campaign for higher saloon license sent a committee to visit the homes of the district and obtain signatures to a high-license petition. When this committee, numbering half dozen members, ascended the steps at the Brahams they found that they had a first to see it through the front window.

"Laws, John!" she exclaimed to her husband, "See all those young men coming to visit us?"

Mr. B., glanced out of the window, noted the number of the invading force and remarked, with an air of conviction:

"Humph! Kate's been praying again."—San Francisco Call.

BEAUTY OF PHYSICAL HEALTH.

No Attractiveness for Women Without Good Digestion.

"To look young and keep your beauty you must have a good digestion," says a healthy natural. "We feed our patrons upon herbs; we give them greens, and we advise them to take acid fruits. When a young woman gets out of sorts she lives upon molasses greens; she mixes sweet herbs; she doctors herself with the fruits of the earth, and she recovers."

"Outdoor life is everything for the woman who wants to keep young. Her walk gives away the woman who does not want people to know how old she is. Usually she loses her elasticity. And she takes to high heels and a stilted walk. Wear conventional shoes and you will lose your youth; in that way you will look younger."

"I advise women generally to take a dancing class. By taking the steps one keeps up one's elasticity winter and summer. I have a class of four women who come three times a week to learn the gypsy fandangoes and the Spanish dances. They find that they breathe better, feel better and are more healthy generally from this exercise."

Penitent and Resourceful.

One of the prison missionaries of the Church Army tells a story of a man who came to him in the infirmary of the society at a mission held at York, England. The man, a notorious pickpocket, was so impressed by what he heard that he felt he must do something to show his determination to lead a new life. He considered the best way to do this was to put something into the collection, but unfortunately he had no money in his pocket. Then a bright idea struck him; he picked the pocket of a man sitting next him, and found a shilling. He was able to contribute to the good work. It is said the man has been reclaimed definitely.

Reads Like a Fairy Tale.

An Aitchison girl had always held of the impetuosity of women in falling to think men for giving up a seat in the street car, and decided that she would be an exception. A man gave her a seat Saturday night in a crowded car, affording her the opportunity for which she had longed. "I don't thank you a thousand times," she said. "It is just what I wanted, and how do you ever know it? It is so comfortable, and I do appreciate it so much." Then, as she sank into the seat: "And such a comfortable seat!" It is the most comfortable seat I ever sat in! Oh, thank you again so much!"—Aitchison Globe.

Death Bed Statistics.

When a great man dies, no one is interested in the person who surrounded his deathbed, but the news is always sent out. People care no more to know than to hear if he were laid out in the parlor or bedroom, or if he were attired in a shroud or his regular clothes. But an Aitchison inquirer has measured his bed, and finds that with out unreasonably crowding it will accommodate 16. How, then, can 30 and 40 men be crowded into the bed of a great man, as told in the telegraph?—Aitchison Globe.

Suspicious.

"I wish," said the hard-hearted landlord, "that you would watch the tenants in No. 3210. He sure that they pay promptly in advance?"

"No," but they haven't asked for any regular for nearly six weeks now. It doesn't look right."

His Serious Interruptions.

"I said John, I still have life away," said the woman in the spring wagon.

"Yes," answered the woman who was crying so awfully of woe. "John has only two regrets in life. One is that he has to wake up to eat, and the other is that he has to quit eating!"

Classified.

"Who was that fool you bowed to?"

"My husband."

"Oh! I—er—I—humbly apologize."

"Never mind; I'm not angry. But what a keen observer you are!"

WAITING FOR A FORTUNE.

Mr. Blinkey Not Worried Over It, Not the Least Bit, But Ready for It.

Like many another man, Mr. Blinkey is always hoping that something will turn up. He's an intelligent man and he knows perfectly well that there isn't one chance in seven hundred and eighteen thousand billion that he'll ever get a dollar that he doesn't work for and earn; and still he's always hoping and thinking that something might happen.

And so when he gets to the office in the morning he looks in the letter box there, not really with the expectation of finding a fortune, but nevertheless thinking that there might be something, not disappointed if there isn't but wishing that he might find there a check for a million dollars, from somebody or somewhere, or notice of some fortune that had been left to him that he was now to come and claim.

It's just the same when he goes home at night. He's been away all day, time enough for 40 things to happen, for 40 fortunes to come in, and he knows there hasn't any come, and still it is not an absolutely impossible thing, and so he's always kind of hoping that he'll hear some good news when he goes home.

He never does, he finds everything going along there placidly; there hasn't been any fortune sent in or brought in by Uncle Sam, and he knows they'll speak of it if there had been; but sometimes he says to Mrs. Blinkey, jokingly:

"Anybody leave us $2,000,000 today?"

"No," says Mrs. Blinkey, smilingly.

"One million?"

"No."

"Half a million, maybe," says Mr. Blinkey.

"No, nor half a million," says Mrs. Blinkey.

"Perhaps it was a hundred thousand dollars. We could do with that."

"No, nor a hundred thousand."

"Not a dollar?" says Mr. Blinkey.

"No, not even a dollar," says Mrs. Blinkey.

"Well, then," says Mr. Blinkey, "I guess I'll smoke my pipe," and he does this thing cheerfully. But he's always hoping.

Twain Emancipated.

Oxford university is not the only seat of learning that has conferred an honorary degree on Mark Twain. A similar tribute was paid to the famous humorist and philosopher not so many years ago by a humble institution at a sleepy Missouri village that had known him when he was playing Tom Sawyer there in real life.

It happened that the degree-conferring ceremonies took place one lazy day in June when newspapers generally were suffering from a total collapse of everything in the way of news.

One Park Run news editor, raked the land with a figurative fine-toothed comb and got a dry hail for his pains. Then, recalling that Mark Twain was getting his honorary degree that very day in his native hamlet it occurred to him that a message direct from the famous author might relieve the situation in the news. After much scratching of the editorial file factory he evolved this query, which was transmitted to Mark Twain by wire:

"How does it feel to be a doctor of laws?" Please wire answer at our expense."

After a wait of several hours this characteristic response came hot over the wire from Missouri:

"It feels like emancipation from ignorance and vice. MARK TWAIN."

Breaking On Gradually.

Stern Parent—See here, Eleanor, I thought I told you to give young Snippen his walking papers?

Pretty Daughter—And I did, papa.

Stern Parent—But he still comes to the house.

Pretty Daughter—Oh, he's only been here seven times this week, papa.

Stern Parent—Only seven times! Great guns! Why—

Pretty Daughter—Now don't be harsh, papa. He is trying to break off gradually.

Old-Time Flying Machine.

Thomas Walker, portrait painter, published at Hull, England, in 1819, "A Treatise Upon the Art of Flying by Mechanical Means." Walker constructed a flying machine based upon his studies of the flight of birds. It was a boat-shaped contrivance, with a long, projecting beak, also a long tail beak, and a pair of wings worked by levers controlled by the hands of the flyer. If this machine was ever actually tried no records of results are now traceable.

Few Are Buying Pearls.

The pearl trade of Bombay has depreciated in value in the last season. It is there that the pearls are finally selected by the jewel merchants. Most of them are sent to Paris, and many are purchased there by wealthy Americans, most of whom, however, have bought sparingly this year. Pearls in Paris are now selling at a third of the usual price, and jewelers have canceled their orders for further consignments from Bombay.

Parting of the Ways.

A few more ticks of the clock and they were due to part forever.

"You have broken my heart," sobbed the summer girl.

"And you," rejoined the young man who was scheduled to resume his position behind the ribbon counter on the morrow, "have broken my pocket book."

And the clock ticked on.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HANGED.

Man Who Has "Seen There" Declares Sensation is Delightful.

I will tell you how it feels to be hanged. At Fort Barrancas, Florida, on April 4, 1864, I was hanged as a Confederate spy. I spent four minutes physically and spiritually between earth and heaven. Then a Yankee sergeant believing me to be the wrong man, cut me down.

My first sensation when the barrel was kicked from under my feet was that a steam boiler inside me was about to explode. Every vein and blood vessel to and from my heart seemed charged with an oppressive fullness that must find an avenue of escape. The nervous system throughout its length was tingling with a painful, prickling sensation like the like of a thousand needles.

Then followed the sense of an explosion, as if a volcano had erupted. This seemed to give me relief, and the pain of milky shivers, yet, strange to say, so transparent that it was easier to pierce with the eye than the light of day. Then came into my mouth a taste of sweetness like the which I have never since known. And I felt myself moving on, with a consciousness of leaving everything behind.

I heard the sweetest of music, and it seemed that more than a thousand harps led in each part, accompanied by myriads of voices.

And the sensation of coming back to life after I had been cut down, was just as painful as the first feeling of hanging. It was acute. Every nerve seemed to have a pain of its own. My nose and fingers were seats of the most excruciating agony. In half an hour the pain was all gone, but I would not so through the experience again for the wealth of the Indies—Rev. J. T. Hand, in Spare Moments.

Disagreed with Oiler.

Mr. Taft tells of an incident one night at a dinner in Murray Bay, Canada, at which there were among the guests Supreme Court Justice Harlan, who is upward of 50 years old, and Dr. Oiler, the Baltimore scientist of 40. It was Dr. Oiler's first visit to Murray Bay, and the scenery enchanted him. He was speaking of it with great enthusiasm to Mr. Taft and Justice Harlan. "What a blessing it would be if all men who have made their mark in the world," began Dr. Oiler, "and who are growing old, past 50, say could retire and come to some quiet, beautiful place like this and end their days in peace and tranquility, free from care and trouble by the incessant pressure of work."

The justice had been listening to Dr. Oiler, with ill concealed impatience. He exploded at the question, "No, sir," he roared, bringing his fist down on the table, "no, sir, it would not be a grand thing, either for the men themselves or for the world. Why, sir, the world would go to the devil—to the devil, if all the men over 50 were compelled to retire."

Long Flights of Birds.

Birds of passage make their longest flight somewhere near Beijing Strait. A naturalist says that probably the longest continuous flight made by the feathered travelers in their peregrinations is accomplished by some of the shore and water birds that nest in the islands of the Pacific and spend the winter at Hawaii and Fanning Island, 2,200 miles away. As some of the birds fly entirely on the shore and are usually unable to rest on the surface of the water, they must accomplish the whole distance in a single flight, yet they make their way to their destination with absolute precision. Among the lost birds of the world it is likely that the Cornish chough before many years will have to be numbered. The bird is becoming scarce. The rook and the jackdaw are ousting it from its habitat. Curiously enough, in Lhasa it has an almost perfect counterpart, so that after its extinction has been complete it will still be in evidence to all intents and purposes.

A Gambler's Father, but Calm. This is a really true boy story. The boy is the beloved son of an attorney in the Seagriff building. When not engaged in getting other persons out of trouble this attorney puts in his time helping his son out of difficulties. The boy is 12 years old.

The attorney was called to the telephone this morning by his stenographer. A school professor, a friend of the family, was out at the other end of the wire. "Paging along the street," the professor said, "I caught William in a gambling game—dice, traps." I believe it is called. What shall I do about it?

"Well," the attorney exclaimed, "if I were you I'd bet on William. He'll win."—Kansas City Star.

He Had Proof.

"I tell you, my boy, it pays to be good. I have reason to know it."

"Did you ever get arrested for anything?"

"No; but a lady to whom I furnished an excuse for securing a divorce from me afterward inherited a fortune."

The Problem.

"Do you think it is as easy to make a fortune as it is used to be?" asked the ambitious youth.

"Easier," answered Senator Sorghum. "The problem is to do it in such a way that your friends will continue to speak to you."

REV. MCGARVEY

President of Bible College, Injured by Buggy.

As the result of a painful accident on Friday afternoon, Rev. J. W. McGarvey, president of the Bible College, is confined to his home. While crossing the street he was struck by a buggy driven by a young man. The vehicle brushed his side and one of the wheels passed over his foot, painfully bruising and spraining it. It will be several days before his injured foot will enable him to be out.

Beech Hargis.

The trial of Beech Hargis at Jackson for murdering his father has been called at Jackson. The lawyers employed to defend him are J. C. Bach, D. B. Redwine, Jos. Cope, Sam Kash, W. A. Young and W. O. Bradley.

If they fail to win or get a light sentence they will not fail to fight the bank account of the young man and his mother. In the prosecution the commonwealth attorney, Kelly Kesh, is assisted by A. F. Byrd, who has figured very conspicuously in the various murder trials against Beech's father, Judge James Hargis.

A dispatch on Monday says: Beech Hargis filed an affidavit this afternoon objecting to the trial of his case by Judge Adams. The affidavit charges the Judge with being an enemy of the Hargis family and says that he prosecuted his father with great bitterness and ability many times while Commonwealth's Attorney. It contains the following remarkable statement:

"Beech Hargis says, 'that at the time he killed his father, Judge Adams was the Commonwealth's Attorney and announced that he had camped on the elder Hargis' trail and now proposed to camp on the defendant's trail and put him where he belongs.'"

The affidavit was prepared by Senator-elect Bradley.

$500 Reward for Murderer of Showman.

Gov. Willson on Wednesday offered a reward of $500 for the conviction of murderer of Driesbach, the man killed at Lexington on the closing night of the fair.

The man's partner, young Harold Lambie, from the south, disappeared from Lexington and is the suspect.

A Fayette county curator of Driesbach's estate was appointed.

Irreligious.

At Lexington on Sunday "Dr." Geo. Morris, pastor of a Lexington church, preached on "King Solomon" described "a worthless vagabond, drunken and idle, an incorrigible vagrant who was (long ago) sold on the steps of the court house, etc."

The preacher said: "I have not chosen this subject to be sensational. I am never sensational in my choice of subjects for that sole end," etc.

Old me!

Osteopathy.

Monday, 9:30 to 2 o'clock.

Wednesday, 9:30 to 2 o'clock.

Seriously Stabbed.

Lock Tolson, of Campton, while in a difficulty with Taylor Wireman, former Marshal of Campton, was seriously cut. Wireman surrendered to County Judge Center and gave bond. He married a daughter of T. F. Stamper, former Sheriff of Wolfe county.

WHEN MEN WORE SHAWLS.

Only Article Appropriated by Them from the Woman's Wardrobe.

On very rare occasions you now see some old lady wearing a shawl, but generally speaking this once universal garment has become obsolete. An Indian or a Persian shawl used to be considered one of the finest feminine possessions in the world, and they were handed down from mother to daughter as prized heirlooms. But now you gave a young woman even a very elegant shawl, costing possibly hundreds of dollars, as many did, she would turn up her beautiful nose at it, and if she used it at all would make a pretense out of it for her corner. She would never think of wearing it, even if it were the only thing she had.

The trouble is that shawls are out of style, and it is easier to drive a camel through the eye of a needle than to get a woman to wear anything that is out of fashion. When women asked how to maintain their shawls and close-fitting clothes they call shawls aside, and if they ever come into favor again it will only be in one "season," as a temporary whim for they have an air about them that is too old-fashioned.

Those children that are say 40 years old or more can probably remember when even men wore shawls instead of overcoats. For about ten years they were considered just the thing. This was the decade beginning with about 1840. President Lincoln was very partial to his big Scotch shawl, which, according to the vogue, he wore, not folded diagonally in fashion as ladies do, but folded lengthwise. This folded shawl was passed over the shoulders and around the front; where it was either held by the hands or pinned by a huge shawl pin. The case of the shawl is about the only one where the men have appropriate articles of wear from the women's wardrobe—though the instances where the reverse has happened are legion. Even then, the shawl was originally not a woman's garment exclusively, for the Scotch Highlander has his tartan plaid, and the men of northern Italy still wear a cloak which is very like once than a shawl.—The Pathfinder.

Why He Called.

"You advertised that you had found a pecked cock, I believe," he asked the man who had come to the door in answer to his ring, according to Judge's Library.

"Yes, sir."

"You say it contained a sum of money?"

"Yes, sir."

"A very large sum of money, in fact?"

"Yes."

"And that the owner could have seen by naming the sum found and describing the pecked cock?"

"Yes, Go on."

"That is all I wished to ask."

"But you will have to give a description of the pecked cock before you can put in a claim."

"You did?"

"No, sir."

"Then why have you called?"

"Simply to see what a man looks like who will find a very large sum of money and then advertise the fact in the papers instead of hiding it down cellar. Good day, sir."

Too Many Big Names.

He was the new elevator boy and the bankers and bankers in the big skyscraper were not familiar with him.

"Charles," called the first broker that entered the car, "the seventh."

The new elevator boy stopped at the seventh floor.

"Lous," said another, "the fifth."

The car slowed up at the fifth floor.

"Albert," persisted another, "the second."

The boy looked suspicious. Suddenly a tall clerk touched him on the arm and chirped:

"Joseph, the first."

This was too much. The new lad looked around in disgust. "Say, are you fellows trying to say me?" he growled. "Or do you think this car is a bunch of human history?"

"Joseph, the first, eh? First thing you will be calling 'Richard, the third,' and I'll go deaf and hoarse. Me kingdom for a horse." Cut it out!

Acquiring Philosophy.

A housekeeper who had rather a small stock of patience went into her kitchen one day to direct the preparation for dinner. She found George, her Japanese cook, pouring over a book. "What are you reading?" she asked. "An 'Inchuaner,' George replied. "Do you think you can understand such philosophy?" the mistress inquired. "Yes, honorable madam, I understand it; I apply it. When you come to tell me how to cook, it is good to remember what the white man says about women. I read here, then I not mind what you say,"—Belman.

Two Opinions.

"So you stopped calling upon Miss Pert," said Gaudy. "She has rather a pretty face, but I consider her nose too long, don't you?"

"Huh!" snorted the rejected one. "I found her 'nose' entirely too short—and emphatic."

Necessity.

"I see you always wear a smiling countenance."

"Yes," answered the candidate a little wearily. "I have to. There is no telling what moment a snapshot photographer may turn up."

PROUD OF ONE OPERATION.

Great Surgeon's Description of His Record Achievement.

Dr. George F. Shady once was asked what he considered the greatest achievement of his long professional career. The great surgeon thought for a moment, and then said, with a twinkle in his eye: "It is an operation that I'll warrant you never heard of. In fact, I don't know the name of the patient and I never got any fee for it. I was summoned to save a boy's life and drove away, all in a very few minutes."

"One summer, years ago, I was out driving in the country up the river. I was going by a farmhouse when a man rushed out waving his arms at me. 'Drive for a doctor, quick,' he yelled. 'My boy's choking to death.' I pulled up my team, shouted to the man to hold the horses and dashed into the house. A boy about ten years old was lying on a couch in the dining room. His face was purple and I did not have to look twice to see that he was choking to death. His mother was kneeling beside him, crying. There was not time for questions or anything else, but the quickest kind of quick work I saw that I would have to perform the operation of tracheotomy without a moment's delay. I had no instruments with me. I felt in my pocket for my penknife, opened it, made the necessary incision in the boy's windpipe and fixed him up temporarily until I could send a note to the nearest doctor to complete the job."

"I heard afterward that the boy got well, and that my penknife operation was as complete a success as if it had been performed in a hospital with all the appliances. I have often looked back on that operation with distinct pleasure, because I worked so swiftly, surely and well without a distinct preparation—automatically. In fact, that is why I feel like calling it my 'star' achievement."

Mrs. Joyce's Happy Thought.

They had met in the home-going train, and the talk had drifted to their neighbors.

"Yes," Mr. Dillings said, reluctantly, in reply to his friend's remark that Mrs. Joyce was "an awfully sweet little woman."

"So cheerful! Always sunny? Always looking on the bright side?" Billings' friend continued enthusiastically.

"There's such a thing as overdoing the 'bright side' business, though," said Billings. "The other night I was up there, and Joyce—you know how absentminded he is?—put the lighted end of his cigar in his mouth. He snuffed three feet, and was a little noisy for a minute. Right in the midst of it all Mrs. Joyce smiled blandly and said:

"How fortunate you are, dear, to discover it at once!"

K-Ray Dermatitis.

Mr. Hal Edwards has been recently granted a civil list in recognition of his services in the development of medical radiography, underwent a further education at his residence, Bristol road, Birmingham, recently, in February last the arm, which had been violently attacked by what is known as K-ray dermatitis, was amputated below the elbow. This did not give the relief hoped for, however, the wound failing to heal, and the patient suffering almost as acutely as before. The operation was also unsuccessful in arresting the progress of the disease, which developed so slowly in the right hand. The last operation involved the removal of the fingers of the right hand. It was performed by Mr. G. H. King, assisted by Mr. Mearns and Mr. Vickers. On inquiry it was stated that the patient had recovered from the effects of the anesthetic, and was as happy as a lark as could be expected. Mr. Hal Edwards has lately been engaged on a work of great importance, which it is understood, he has practically completed.—London Times.

Soldier of Fortune Dead.

A remarkable soldier has just died at Budapest in the person of Gen. Stephen Tur, one of the bravest revolutionary generals that ever lived. He commenced his military career as a lieutenant in the Austrian army. Then he fought for the Hungarian revolutionary government, helped to quell a German revolution, and joined Garibaldi in his great struggle. On the outbreak of the Crimean war he served as a volunteer in Gen. Pashley's army against Russia, and finally received a commission in the British transport service. It was while buying horses for the British army at Bucharest in 1855 that the general was seized by the Austrians as deserter and sentenced to death. But both the British and French governments made such emphatic protests against this sentence that it was commuted to a banishment. Finally the old soldier settled down in Paris.

Offended Art.

"I want a photograph representing me just as I am. None of this 'touching up' business, understand."

"You are in the wrong shop," replied the artistic photographer. "Better try the police station. It's a Bertillon style of picture you're after."

Not a Native.

Lawson—"I thought you said your friend was from Vermont?"

Dawson—"So he is. What of it?"

Lawson—"Why, I've been listening to him new for an hour, and he hasn't said 'B'gosh' but twice."

Sufficient Reason.

"Are you going to the commencement?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I want to go to a commencement once."

DECLARED WORSE THAN CANCER.

Of the Two, Pangs of Toothache Are Less Easy to Bear.

"You of the younger generation," said the dentist, severely, "don't appreciate the importance of the conquest of toothache that dentistry has made. Toothache is the worst torture that ever afflicted mankind. Its pains—'lancinating' they are technically called—are worse than the pains of cancer. More than cancer, that is the truth. I have heard it from physicians, I have heard it from three old people whom cancer finally killed. They all said that the pangs of cancer at its worst was mildly the pain of the worst toothache."

Toothache drove Dr. Quincy to pulp-sucking. DeQuincy, too, says I have the passage by heart:

"The intensity and scorching fierceness can be imagined on this fact—that, within my private knowledge, two persons who had suffered alike under toothache and cancer, have pronounced the former to be, on the scale of torture, by many degrees the worse. In both there are at times lancinating pangs—keen, glancing, arrow radiations of anguish; and upon these the basis of comparison is reached. The cancer patient, however, with the result that I have stated."

ANTS AS WEATHER PROPHETS.

Their Method of Giving Warning of an Approaching Storm.

Ants as weather prophets afford new testimony to the cleverness of these small insects.

When you go out on a spring morning, and find the ants busily engaged in clearing out their nests and dragging the sand and bits of earth to the surface you may be sure that the weather soon clearly it is there will be no rain that day and the probabilities are for several days of good weather.

If, however, you see the ants about the middle of a spring or summer afternoon hurrying back to the nest with a great load of earth, and a great section looking up stragglers and urging them to go home as soon as they can get there, you may figure on a rain that afternoon or night.

When the last of the wanderers is found the picket hurries in and the nest is securely sealed from the outside to keep out the water. It is seldom that ants are taken by surprise by the approach of a shower.

Show Men Like Apes.

Prehistoric paintings recently unearthed show man to have been like an ape. The only known examples of paintings of man by prehistoric artists are those discovered lately by Prof. Rene Launel in the Pirene, France, where the Neolithic man found quaternary remains and human bones. About 40 skeletons in black or red, only one in each color, adorn the cave walls. In the black ones went man of a primitive type, while the others show blons, hairs and bones of a more modern type. There is a long head, with retreating forehead, while the other shows a remarkable apish pose, with rounded back and arms quite akimbo, fingers in loose, one of the darkest walls of the cavern.

One by Barnabas Ben.

"Retired, mate," declared Ben, "retired, mate." "I certainly did, but I see wonderful things when I was cruising around the seven seas. Why, I once saw a sailing ship follow the Nancy Jones for 1,000 miles. We used to throw off the leavings from the galley and when we'd hit a big can, why, the sailors would saw up our firewood in stove lengths. All we had to was to toss the long sticks over and he'd take a long rake and rake them aboard. Nature failed? Never heard of it, mate, never heard of it."

And Barnabas Ben lit his pipe and shuffled away.

His Deep Concern.

The kind old lady noticed a small lad entering a cobbler's with a small package.

"What have you there, sonny?" she asked, kindly.

"Me's slippers," replied the lad; "you see, there is a tack out of place in it and I want to have it fixed before me tomorrow."

"Ah, what a considerate little boy! I suppose you are afraid the tack might hurt your mother's foot?"

"No, ma'am, I'm afraid you see, the tack is sticking out on the sole and this is the slippers ma spansks me with."

Arabs Outlive Eskimo.

While it may be true that the white man loses in intellectual and bodily power, the coast people of South America are longer lived than the mountain people; that old age is much commoner in the southern countries of Europe than in the northern, and that Spain (with a population smaller by 5,000,000) has 401 centenarians to England's 146.

CYCLONE.

Fences, Trees Etc., Tossed About.

On Friday a wind, rain and hail storm of unusual force and severity swept through this county in a narrow belt, entering from Clark, passing through our county at the farm of Nick Hadden on to Camargo and towards Howard's Mill. Many trees were blown down or twisted off, fences leveled, fruit blown off, crops damaged by wind and hail in slugs. The chimney of the Camargo Christian Church was blown off, plastering broken and exterior scarred by hail. Peter Cockrell was riding in his buggy. His horse and buggy were blown over and Mr. Cockrell's face bruised. The hail was so thick and atmosphere so dark that people were in places scarcely able to see the width of the pike. We have heard of no serious injuries.

PLAYING WITH MATCHES.

Prof. Gunn's Youngest Daughter Burned To Death.

A dispatch was received at Lexington Saturday announcing the death of the youngest daughter, Bonnie Roberts, of Prof. and Mrs. H. M. Gunn, recently removed from our city to Tacoma, Wash. The particulars were not given, but the fact was made known that the child was playing with matches. Her clothing ignited and the child burned to death. The many friends of the family will be grieved to hear of this great sorrow which has befallen the family in their new home and the circumstances connected with it.

Crop conditions are favorable in Central Kentucky. No fat cattle have been this county for about six months. Some early sales have been made at prices much higher than could now be realized.

Judge Mathew M. Redwine

Leave Kentucky.

Judge Mathew M. Redwine, of Kentucky, returned from the New York State Legislature, after spending time through Ohio, Indiana, and other Western States. Judge Redwine has about decided to leave his home in the State. He has been pleased with the country, and has an option on five sections of land.

"They are all Bryan people," said Judge Redwine, "and none of them has the same idea that he will be in this fall. I found it the Dr. Shiley, all through the Western at to present."

As I passed through Kan. I met a very clever gentleman, a train. He said that he had been a Republican all his life, but here, intended to vote for Bryan.

She married a young (?) man. He was a member of a large family; there were seven brothers. The first husband died. Rev. C. F. Ony on next Sunday at Grassly Lick finishes his third year on this circuit. The service will be designated as an Old Folks' Meeting. We suggested the singing of "Old Time Religion Its Good Enough For Me." There is no telling what will happen at conference. So far as we are concerned his return would be highly acceptable.
The Montgomery County Sunday School Association will hold its annual convention at Camargo, Thursday, to-morrow. Every Sunday School in the county is urged to be well represented. A good strong program has been arranged and everything points to a great meeting of Sunday School people. Christian men and women cannot afford to be indifferent concerning the work of the Sunday Schools in this county. This "field here at home" is ripe already unto the harvest; who will be the reapers? Do not fail to be at Camargo for the opening song at 9:30 a. m. and stay till the benediction is pronounced at 4 p. m. The two churches (Methodist and Christian) will serve dinner to all who attend. Come with a prayer in your heart, a song on your lips, and a benediction for the work.
W. H. Combs, County President.

Saxton's orchestra, of Lexington, furnished the music, and dancing was indulged in until the wee sma' hours. The German was led by Mr. Rogers and daughter. Delightful refreshments were served.

Head Ache Sometimes?

If so, it will interest you to know that it can be stopped with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills; and without any bad after-effects, and this without danger of forming a drug habit or having your stomach disarranged. They positively contain no opium, morphine, cocaine, chloral, ether or any other habit-forming drug. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain, and leave only a sense of relief. The reason for this is explained by the fact that headache comes from tired, irritable, turbulent, over-taxed brain nerves. Anti-Pain Pills soothe and strengthen these nerves, thus removing the cause. They are harmless when taken as directed.

"We use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for the cure of headache, and we think that there is nothing that will equal them. They will cure the severest form of headache, and headache in a very few minutes. I am of a nervous temperament, and occasionally have spells when my nerves seem to be completely exhausted, and I tremble so I can scarcely contain myself. I have taken Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they quiet me right away. It is remarkable what a soothing effect they have upon the nerves."

ACCEPTS

On the Only Platform That Recognizes Almighty God.

In Chicago on August 18, Eugene Chalmers, of that city, accepted the nomination for President by the Prohibition party. He closed his speech with these words:

"While not a line of history will be changed by the election of a Republican or Democrat, the triumph of the Prohibition party and the placing of its platform in the constitution and upon the statute book, will write the longest, brightest, purest and most beneficent chapter of history that has marked the progress of civilization since governments were instituted among men.

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, to you, and through you to the prohibitionists of the United States, I extend my hearty thanks and grateful appreciation for this token of your esteem and confidence. I consider it the highest honor that will be conferred upon an American citizen this presidential year.

"With a firm reliance upon Divine providence, I accept your commission and will hold high the banner of our party and defend the only national platform made this year that recognizes Almighty God and give all there is of me in thought, strength and soul, and in these great reforms are crystallized into law and the victory is complete."

Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail." writes J. H. Zirkle, of Phillips, W. Va. "I saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Phillips Republican and decided to try it. The result is, one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eight months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and although sixty years old, can do a much work as a young man." Sent by R. H. White & Co., 441

Dark Tobacco Crop.

The Dark Tobacco Grower's Association reports shows the present crop to be in fine condition. It is believed that this will be the best crop raised in years. Owing to the large amount of last year's crop to rot, that remains unsold and the present large crop in the field it has been decided to reduce the acreage for the next crop.

THE GRAVE OF MANSFIELD.

Thousands Visit Last Resting Place of the Great Actor.

New London, Conn., has this season a new point of interest for summer visitors. The grave of Richard Mansfield is the lure for many at near-by resorts. In the midst of all the merry-making and the actor is remembered and persons in automobiles, in carriages, on bicycles and on foot make a pilgrimage of devotion to the little cemetery where he is buried. Every conductor on the Ocean Beach trolley line can give minute instructions for finding the Mansfield home and the Mansfield grave, and very often they are required to furnish it. Having left the car line and climbed a hill on a steep ascent, there still is a hot, dusty walk ahead on Ocean avenue before the cemetery is reached, but many a Mansfield admirer trudges over it uncomplainingly. In the laws of the big estate gardeners are at work who speak but little English, but all know the name of Mansfield, and all can muster enough of the language to direct the way to the Mansfield home and the graveyard opposite.

The gates of the cemetery never are locked. He who will may wander among the new headstones and the old ones, and back to the far corner where Mansfield lies. There is no stone there. A double row of dwarf boxwoods, which form the boundaries of the plot, in the center is the grave. It lies level with the earth, thick-growing pines cover it, and at the head is a bowl of cut flowers which are renewed each day. In that quiet spot memories of Jean Bressan, of Dr. Jeckyll, of Peter Gyn, live again, and make the trip, even for the traveler on foot, well worth while.

Too Much.

There had been a small bank failure in an Iowa town, and the bank had gone into the hands of a receiver. The receiver proved to be dishonest, and had absconded with what remained of the funds of the institution. Expert detectives were, however, on his track, and he was run down in a neighboring state and taken back to the scene of his financial exploits.

It was at midnight that the detective arrived at the prison, and a Mr. Collins, the principal depositor in the bank, and, therefore, the principal loser, was awakened at his home and informed by telephone of the capture.

He expressed his gratification and went back to bed.

Shortly afterward he was aroused to receive another telephone message to the same effect, from a different source.

This sort of thing continued to such an extent that Collins grew very weary; so that, when he answered the telephone for the last time, he was in anything but an amiable frame of mind.

"Hello, Collins," came over the wire.

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Collins, this is Deputy Sheriff Myers. We've caught that runaway receiver. Is there anything you'd like me to do, personally, in the matter?"

"Yes!" roared Collins, "hang up the receiver!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

The Jolly Fat Man.

When you meet a bow-legged man in the street, do not stop him and ask how it feels to walk that way. On being introduced to a man with a face like an inverted cone, do not ask him how he feels. You are both being so homesy? Do you recommend to the sallow man sitting next you in a car a tonic for his liver? Ask him do you hint to the party-eyed, red-nosed stranger opposite you that he ought to get on the water wagon? If course you don't. You would not do so impolitely. You might hurt their feelings.

But when you meet a fat man, it is different. Everybody recognizes him as legitimate prey. He is a butt for jokes, a subject for condolence, an object for advice. Even the man so thin that he does not know whether it is his back or his stomach that hurts him, takes it for granted that he is the fat man's ideal, and insists on giving him advice on how to reduce. Every line suggests that the fat man must be unhappy because he weighs more than the average person.—Exchange.

Still Susceptible.

He was a nervous, thirty young man, and he looked with his understanding appreciation at the woman next him, who held a baby in her face covered with a tickle. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last after many anxious glances, the young man spoke.

"Doesn't that baby any—anything comical?" he asked.

"The woman looked at him with a measured smile and replied:

"—'Twon't be for most folks," she said, in a clear, carrying tone, "but mine (pointing to you) it's just what you'd expect."

Decies the "Midnight Oil."

People talk about the midnight oil as if it had some virtuous attached to it, and they do. It is the "Midnight Oil" Companion. "In truth, four times out of five the midnight oil means overwork, or it means that you have neglected some duty which should have been attended to before the sun went down.

"Unless each night recovers the ground lost in the exertion of the day before, you are committing suicide by inches; and you have no right to commit suicide at all."

POSSIBILITY OF THE FUTURE.

When Navigation of the Air Shall Have Become Common.

The man from Mars checked his aerolite. He saw below him what resembled a huge rat trap. An immense steel frame composed of light rods entirely covered the buildings beneath it. The steel frame was sufficient height to just clear the loftiest skyscraper.

As the man from Mars stared at this contrivance a section of it opened upward and he and his trained aerolite dropped through. As he alighted in the city square a man in uniform hurried up to him.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting outside," he said in cheerful tones, "but at first I couldn't quite make you out. I'm the guardian of the sky trap."

"Glad to know you," said the man from Mars. "And now tell me what in the name of all that's wonderful this wire cheese box means."

"Why, that's our halloo guard," laughed the officer. "You see the airships and balloons got to be such a nuisance that we had to put up this trap. Why, they used to drop all sorts of things on us. Sometimes they'd drop themselves. Two of our best citizens were killed over there in the city square by the safe by which they'd have airship planks, too, and throw the scraps all over us. There was no law legislating against 'em. Finally, when things got too bad, the mayor himself was felled by a cheese sandwich just as he was putting up the governor's daughter, we put up this halloo guard."

The man from Mars took out his notebook.

"How very curious," he said.

A Novel Bottle.

In furnishing information concerning California's supply of the various "soft" drinks, Consul General William H. Michael refers as follows to an improved bottle in use.

"This bottle is as is known as to contain in the neck a round glass stopper, which is forced upward by the gas in the bottle and holds the gas perfectly. An expert can remove the stopper, which fits in the hole of the contents of one of these bottles, and by a shake force the ball up into the neck, and thus preserve the contents half for future use. It is an ingenious device, and every way superior to the old-style corks. In opening a bottle a wooden, cup-shaped device, which fits in the hole of the ball and contains a short nipple, is placed over and against the glass ball stopper and pressed down. This causes the ball to drop down into the neck of the bottle, prevents too rapid escape of gas and foam, and if only part of the contents is to be used, the ball may be forced back into the position as stopper.

Imaginary Necessities.

"Were it not for the thousands of people who are slaves to imaginary necessities we might have avoided the panic of last October," says a writer in Appleton's. "It was these people indirectly who brought it on. It was these people who suffered most when it came. These necessities were not in their retinution. The man who is earning $30 a week and spending $15 does not fear panics. Neither does the man who is earning $100 a year and spending $25,000. Saviors who do not know how to reef their sails would be at the mercy of squalls. People who do not know how to hold down their expenses are at the mercy of panics. A certain rich New Yorker, who retired from the stock exchange recently, started business, 40 years ago with three friends. When times were prosperous he could not afford to live as well as they did. When times were hard they had to borrow money from him in order to live at all."

Woman Tougher Than Man.

Although men, as they run, are perhaps numerically stronger than women, their ability to withstand the elements and their reliance upon clothes places them considerably below the so-called weaker sex in the matter of undisciplined toughness. Women wear clothes for ornament; men use them as a protective covering. A group of men in the temperate zone might be expected to die off in a month from draughts and colds and rheumatism. A group of women similarly placed would suffer little from the enforced exposure. The fact appears to be, therefore, that in everything but intellect—in vitality, ruggedness, character, disposition, brain power, etc., woman is the tougher or not the weaker, sex.

Disappointed.

The old countryman with the faded satchel stood in front of the sidewalk with a look of disgust on his face.

"What's the trouble, old?" asked the stoutest individual who was telling the crowd about the wonderful old man's house. "You look disappointed."

"I am," grunted the old man. "I had heard there was a house of this size down at the side show but ain't heard one of you back."

Putting It Up to the Quierist.

The next letter the information editor received contained this question:

"What is the correct pronunciation of 'treacherous'?" he wrote, and severely implied both the query and answer on the copy book.

For repeatedly had carried away the little dictionary.

State Schools.

Should the Auditor of State adhere to the opinion of Judge James Breathitt, the Attorney General, and refuse to pay the appropriation of the last General Assembly to the State University and the two Normal Schools until after the constitutionality of the act has been passed upon by the courts, it will likely cause the temporary suspension of the institutions. Such is the opinion of Hon. Jere A. Sullivan, of Madison county, author of the bill.

COURT OF APPEALS DECISIONS.

Judge Sullivan says the constitutionality of an act of the Legislature of 1906 in appropriating $40,000 for the maintenance of the two white normal schools was attacked, but was upheld by unanimous opinion of the Court of Appeals. He says the question was again attacked when Judge Hager as Auditor refused to pay to the Kentucky State College, now the State University, an appropriation of $15,000 additional for the maintenance of the institution, it being held that the additional appropriation could not be made by the General Assembly without a vote of the people.

The Appellate Court, by a unanimous vote, upheld the constitutionality and validity of this act.

Growth of Woman's Suffrage.

The National American Woman Suffrage Association grows in membership every year, and its annual income has risen from $2,544 in 1892 to $25,662 in 1907.

Of the 46 states of the Union there are anti-suffrage associations in only four and small anti-suffrage committees in four more, while there are suffrage associations in 32 states and several territories.

Skin Games At County Fairs.

We are not Puritanical or straight-laced in our views and are not inclined to regard a decently conducted "German Village" at a county fair or any other similar gathering of people as an agency of the Devil; but we are of the opinion that the Blue Grass Fair is too representative an institution to permit such a lot of "skin games" as infested the Fair Grounds last week to fleece its patrons under official protection.

If revenue is derived from these vicious gambling schemes and it is necessary to the financial success of the fair, then indeed is this splendid institution upon a shaky foundation.

It is suggested that the legal complications as to the sale of beer, wines, etc., be adjusted by the removal of the German Village tent to that part of the fair grounds lying within the city limits, as there is no serious objection to this feature; but we sincerely hope that the Blue Grass Fair and all other Lexington fairs and exhibitions will hereafter refuse to permit skin games to prey upon their patrons.—Lexington Leader.

Air Craft and Balloon Is Turned Over To Uncle Sam.

The United States army now owns the Baldwin military dirigible balloon. After three signal corps officers had made eight trips in the airship, Gen. James Allen, chief signal officer, informed Capt. Baldwin that having fulfilled his contract, he could turn over the balloon at any time.

While the airship had been accepted as far as construction, speed and endurance were concerned, Capt. Baldwin still had one provision of his contract to carry out. This was to train two signal corps officers to handle the craft. In an hour's time he trained three officers to Gen. Allen's satisfaction.

With a Million Cattle, a Hundred Thousand Sheep and a Hundred Thousand Horses—Residence Cost $2,000,000—Owner Has Twelve Children.

[Christian Herald.]

Don Luis Terrazas, in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico, is said to be the owner of the largest farm in the world. It is 150 miles north and south, by 200 miles east and west, and includes 8,000,000 acres of land. On its mountains and through its valleys there roam 1,000,000 head of cattle, 700,000 sheep and 100,000 horses. The horsemen, herdsmen, shepherds and hunters number an army of 2,000 men. The ranch is the only one in the world which maintains its slaughtering and packing plant. Each year 150,000 head of cattle and 100,000 sheep are slaughtered, dressed and packed. There are five mammoth reservoirs on the farm, costing $500,000, and 300 wells scattered over the estate, which cost another $500,000. The proprietor is a scientific farmer and raises every kind of grain in his fields. His farmhouse is said to be the most magnificent one in the world, costing $2,000,000, and capable of entertaining 500 guests. The gardens are beautifully laid out and the stables are more magnificent than those of any earthly emperor. On the homestead alone are employed 100 male servants. Don Luis was at one time Governor of Chihuahua, but he tired of his political life and longed for larger liberty and a greater variety of employment. He has a beautiful wife and twelve children; seven sons and five daughters. The sons are actively engaged with him in superintending the ranch, while the women, who are said to be the most beautiful in Mexico, remain contentedly at the homestead. The children were educated in the United States and have traveled extensively throughout the world. He is richer than any three men in Mexico and is benevolent in spirit and generous in his contribution to worthy enterprises. Farming is the basis of all other industries. The farm is the physical support of the race. Farmers and boys-men of olden times often had vast estates and magnificent incomes.

SMOKELESS WARSHIP.

Swift, Noiseless Fighting Vessel Predicted By An Engineer.

"War vessels of the future will be swift, smokeless, noiseless, the craft lying low in the water, with every vulnerable part below the water line, the entire deck being given over to the work of the guns. There will be no smoke because there will be no smokestacks."

This prediction was recently made by Robert H. Fernald, mechanical engineer, for years connected with the fuel investigations of the United States geological survey. Mr. Fernald believes that the gas engine will be installed in naval vessels of the United States within the next few years.

The purpose of the government has been to develop the gas engine as a means of conserving the coal supply.
